Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Stage 67," ABC's loudly heralded weekly series of original productions, got off to a rousing start Wednesday night with Murray Schisgal's "Love Song of Barney Kempinski." Original it was indeed.

Part Walter Mitty, part slapstick, part satire, part guided tour, it was all crazy comedy from the moment Barney, an uninhibited East Side New Yorker, emerged from his tenement, announced it was his wedding day and promptly stole a taxicab.

His first passenger was a drunken tycoon — Sir John Gielgud, no less — who in the course of a weeping jag savagely attacked our hero with his umbrella.

Barney, exuberantly played by Alan Arkin, then stole an ice cream vendor's cart, encountered a fellow so in love with wristwatches that he had a drawer full of them, and they joined up as uninvited soloists with a group of strolling musicians.

Then he took over a guided tour of Chinatown, stole a meat truck and tried to sell a moribund piglet to a millionaire — Alan King — who was in the middle of a vicious fight with his wife.

There was much more. The program had that element of fantasy of "A Hard Day's Night" and of the books by the late Thorne Smith. It was insane and nonsensical yet with charm and warmth.

It is certain the audience's opinion of the show will be split in two. Some will be confused and find it just silly. Others will be bewildered but have enjoyed it thoroughly. This viewer is in the latter group.

Earlier in the evening, NBC's "Virginian" came riding back for a third season with a whole new family to introduce to the audience.

During the summer reruns, Judge Garth moved away and sold Shiloh Ranch. The new owner, played by Charles Bickford, plus a fiery-tempered young grandson and a pretty granddaughter arrived.

The story was a routine TV Western, but it was interesting to see the way all the new characters were inserted without causing much of a ripple. Apparently no one except the Virginian himself — actor James Drury — is insensible in the series.

Bob Hope's dramatic series started a new season with a suspense tale of murder that had a lot of Alfred Hitchcock trimmings but a very weak, silly windup. Julie Harris played a thankless double role — murdered invalid and her insane sister, and Farley Granger was the handsome, conniving heavy.

RINK AND RELIGION
FARGO, N.D. (AP) — The Rev. Harvey L. Gustafson here is known as the "holier rink preacher" who pumps the pipe organ both for worshippers and skaters.

On Friday and Saturday nights, he plays the pipe organ for a skating rink across the river in Moorhead, Minn., and on Sundays, leads his St. Matthew's Lutheran congregation in singing to a small, classic pipe organ built at his own expense.

MR. & MRS. JOHN H. SCHOOLEY, JR.

On Sunday, September 11 at 2 p.m. in the chapel of the First Methodist Church Miss Judith Lynn O'Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. O'Neal, and Airman second class, John Homer Schooley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Homer Schooley, Sr. were joined in holy matrimony with the Rev. R. B. Moore, Jr., officiating.

The double - ring ceremony was performed beneath an arch of white candles and Southern smilax flanked by baskets of white gladiolus and greenery. Mrs. B. C. Hyatt, organist, played a program of pre-nuptial music and accompanied Miss Gayle Williams when she sang "Because" before the exchange of vows and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt on a prie-dieu at the conclusion of the ceremony. Candles were lighted by Miss Barbara Skinner of Dallas, niece of the bridegroom, and Benny O'Neal, brother of the bride.

Entering upon the arm of her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of white Chantilly lace and peau de soie fashioned with a scalloped, boat neck and long fitted sleeves that ended in lily points over the hands. Her shoulder - length veil of illusion fell from a tiny circlet of satin. The bride carried white gladiolus and gladiolus buds with foliage bows and lemonleaf.

Miss Gail Cross was the bride's only attendant. She wore pink linen and a short veil and carried a single long-stemmed pink rose.

Patrick Schooley served his brother as best man, and Bill Coffee ushered.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. O'Neal wore blue silk with black accessories, while Mrs. Schooley, mother of the bridegroom, chose a green suit with beige accessories. Each had a corsage of pink roses and fleur d'amour.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The serving table was covered with pink net over a white background and centered with pink and white flowers in a silver epergne. The three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom was served by Mrs. Bill Cross. The pink punch was poured by Mrs. Lyle Allen.

Seated at a table with a Memory Candle was Miss Linda O'Neal, sister of the bride, who presided over the bride's book, Misses Linda Fae Quilliams and Linda Kay Frasier distributed rice bags to the guests.

For travel the bride wore a pink three-piece suit with matching accessories and pinned a white gladiolus corsage at her shoulder. The couple will honeymoon en route to their new home in Macon, Ga., where he is stationed at Warner Air Force Base.

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to Helen Help US!, this newspaper.

WHAT IS A LADY?

Dear Helen: The other day my gentleman friend started to analyze me. He says I've very free or loose with my morals because I will talk to anyone about sex.

I don't think that means anything, because sex is an interesting subject, and besides I only discuss it with my friends or his (mostly married). After all, the things we talk about are in magazines and books and quite fascinating.

He also says, "A lady laughs to herself when she hears a dirty joke and doesn't let anyone know she has caught on." I say to pretend ignorance is too prissy. To sum it up, Helen, what he is really saying is that MEN can do all the talking they want about sex, but a LADY must pretend she's back in the 19th century.

What do you say? Am I - Sex Crazy?

Dear S. C.: No, but if your gentleman friend prefers you to be "prissy" you'd better do a little pretending or you may lose him. And men who still think women should be protected are hard to replace these days. — H.

Dear Helen: I am a divorced mother of six teenagers. I have met a swell guy with whom I work. He is also divorced and has children. I can almost feel myself falling in love with him, but I think he is afraid to ask

I met this nice man and we got married.

Sombody told me my first marriage wasn't legal because I ran away and was under age, and he was a "fugitive." So I figured it was all right to marry again. Now somebody else tells me I'm a bigamist. Can I get a divorce from one man while I'm married to another? Or am I really married?

Dear C: You need a lawyer to straighten out this tangle. Even though a marriage isn't "legal" an annulment is necessary before another marriage can take place. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen Help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of Hope Star.

Presidential Plan for Viet Nam Favored

By LEWIS GULICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials tend to favor a presidential system for South Viet Nam's new government — but Washington is going to keep hands off the making of the constitution.

This post-election account was given to newsmen after the White House issued Wednesday a 44-page report on what President Johnson terms "the other war" — the nonmilitary campaign to build South Viet Nam as a nation.

Johnson hailed the big turnout in Sunday's Vietnamese elections as "a vote of confidence" and said the results show the people "approve of what we are doing there."

Both Johnson and his top aide in charge of the civilian program for Viet Nam, Robert Komer, said "the other war" is not being won yet but progress is impressive.

Komer cited moves against South Viet Nam's inflation as the top nonmilitary accomplishment this year. He also reported 12,000 Communists detected in January-August of this year, more than in all of 1965.

Viet Nam used to be a French colony. After the Indochina War ended in 1954 Ngo Dinh Diem ruled the newly independent South with growing despotism. Since Diem's overthrow in 1963, in the opinions of U. S. officials, none of the successor regimes has governed with broad-based control across the country.

Last Sunday's election, sponsored by the Ky military government, named a 117-member assembly to draw up a constitution for South Viet Nam within the next six months.

The U.S. officials said American experts are inclined toward a presidential system — a popularly elected chief executive along with an elected legislature — as better for South Viet Nam than a parliamentary system, like Britain's, under which the government head is chosen by the legislature.

The presidential system is regarded here as more likely to produce a strong and continuous executive leadership believed needed for South Viet Nam. Parliamentary systems in many countries have a history of government instability amid the jockeying of political parties.

But a sure recipe for disaster would be for the United States to try to impose a formula on the Vietnamese, officials say. U.S. specialists will be available for technical advice if asked, but will shun any "made in U.S.A." stamp on the constitution.

Abbot Remains in Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic Leader Carl Albert remained hospitalized today at the Bethesda Medical Center where he was taken after suffering what doctors called a minor coronary occlusion without complication.

The 58-year-old Oklahoma Democrat was ordered to rest for several weeks. He was stricken with chest pains Tuesday while working at his desk in the Capitol.

Battery-Fed Lamps Light Dining Spots

Battery-powered lamps are giving the homeowner and the operator of restaurants, hotels and motels attractive decor for party spots and dining areas.

Designers of restaurants generally agree that ordinary overhead lighting leaves much to be desired for warm and romantic atmosphere. Yet seemingly obvious solutions are either dangerous or unworkable.

Table lamps can not be attached by cords to wall outlets because customers would trip over them or accidentally disconnect them. Candles constitute a continuous fire hazard, especially on tables which must be moved out by the waiter so that patrons may sit down.

Lamps powered by rechargeable batteries have eliminated both difficulties and offer extra convenience. For instance, many lamps available for restaurants and nightclubs are equipped with a button which, when pressed, activates a blinking red light to summon the waiter. The lamps shed a soft, constant light without heat, smoke or candle wax and there is no cord to entangle the customer. As many as 20 lamps can be recharged at one time with the charger.

Cordless lamps are becoming increasingly popular with hostesses at home for much the same reasons, especially when they want to give a party on the terrace or lawn. Wall lamps without the unsightly cord are also favorites.

Dodgers Go 2 1/2 Games in the Lead

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Give the Los Angeles Dodgers a mile and they'll take an inch — all the way to the bank.

The Dodgers, walking the wire toward another National League pennant, danced to a five-run lead in the first inning of Thursday night's series opener against Pittsburgh but were teetering at the finish of a 5-3 victory that sent them 2 1/2 games ahead of the runner-up Pirates.

Don Drysdale threw a three-hitter at the stumbling Bucs for 8 2/3 innings, then threw a scare into the Dodger Stadium crowd of 50,599 with successive home run pitches to Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell before Phil Regan came out of the bullpen to nail the final out.

It was the Dodgers' seventh straight victory and their 12th in 14 games. Few have come easy, but they wouldn't have it any other way.

"We wouldn't know what to do with a big lead," outfielder Ron Fairly said before the first of three key games with the Pirates. "We'd probably fall asleep." Fairly was talking about the pennant race, but his theory applied Thursday night, too.

After rocking Vern Law and reliever Billy O'Dell for four hits in the five-run first, the Dodgers collected three more hits the rest of the evening.

Drysdale, however, overpowered the Pirates, retiring the first nine men he faced and setting down 13 in a row after Bob Bailey's fifth-inning double. But, when he threw change-ups to Clemente and Stargell in the ninth, they wound up in the seats.

Regan ended the bid with one pitch, retiring Donn Clendenon on a fly ball to protect Drysdale's 10th victory against 16 setbacks.

Third-place San Francisco moved within one-half game of Pittsburgh by trouncing the New York Mets 10-4 and Chicago whipped Atlanta 8-2, snapping the Braves' winning streak at eight, in the only other NL games.

Baltimore swept an American League doubleheader from California, 2-0 and 4-3; Washington split a twin bill with New York, winning the opener 3-4 before bowing 10-5; Kansas City nipped Cleveland 1-0 in 11 innings, and Boston beat Chicago 5-4.

Dick Schofield, a former Pirate acquired by Los Angeles from the New York Yankees last weekend, started the Dodgers' first-inning bing with a one-out single. After Law retired Willie Davis, Fairly and Jim Lefebvre singled for one run and Lou Johnson doubled another across, chasing the Pirate starter.

O'Dell walked John Roseboro, filling the bases, and the third run scored when shortstop Gene Alley booted Wes Parker's grounder. Drysdale bounced to third baseman Bailey, but Parker beat the throw to second as Johnson crossed the plate. O'Dell then balked the fifth run home.

The Giants buried New York under a 14-hit attack that included two homers by Tito Fuentes and another by Jim Hart, while Bob Bolin scattered eight Met hits and squared his record at 10-10.

Fuentes, who went into the game with five homers, connected on Bob Shaw's first pitch in the first inning, triggering a three-run uprising, then hit a two-run shot in the fifth. Hart slammed his 33rd homer in the third.

HALAS ON SATERS
CHICAGO (AP)—"I can't expect him to have an off year like last year," says Chicago Bear Coach George Halas when talking about runner Gale Sayers. "He's a great back, a record 22 touchdowns as a rookie, but the National Football League teams will get special defenses to him. In training camp, he's working to take advantage of these special defenses."

Halas sees one advantage when rivals concentrate on the man.

"When teams do that," says Halas, "they leave themselves more vulnerable."

Grudge Game Between Rams, Bears

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Remember the George Halas-George Allen feud last winter? Papa Bear went to court to keep Allen from moving to Los Angeles but finally relented. There were angry charges that Allen had snatched Chicago's vital defensive secrets.

Well, it comes down to the football field Friday night when Halas takes his Bears into the Coliseum to face Allen's re-treads.

When the Bears line up for the attack, there will be Bill George, an old familiar face, playing middle linebacker for the Rams. It all adds up to a game of get even.

They say the Bears are a slight favorite but the pick here is the Rams because Al Jarry date since the day he left the Halas fire-side.

Green Bay let us have it right between the eyes last week when we picked Baltimore but the old hand picker staggered through with 3-2-2 in the National Football League and a 4-0 in the American Football League for a season record of 10-2-2 (3-0 AFL opening week).

Let's try again. All games are Sunday afternoon unless otherwise noted.

Los Angeles 16, Chicago 14 (Friday night)—Allen should know the book on the Bears. He wrote some of it. Of course, nobody has written the chapter on how to stop Gale Sayers. If the players play as hard as the coaches coach it should be worth traveling miles to see.

Rams an edge on Bruce Gossett's kicking. Mike Ditka doubtful starter.

Green Bay 24, Cleveland 20—Packers can't possibly be as good as they looked against Colts but they are anxious to prove the 1965 title victory was no fluke. Browns may run against Packers but they'll find that pass defense unlike Washington's sieve. Monte Clark to miss second straight game.

Baltimore 35, Minnesota 17—John Unitas and Co. hungry for action after that embarrassing night in Milwaukee. Tough Colt defense should contain Vikings but Baltimore will bomb the Dutchman's deep men.

Detroit 20, Pittsburgh 14—Watch out for this one. Lions upset Bears in opener but they lack consistency. If they think they can get over Steelers without 100 per cent effort they are due for a surprise. Bill Austin has Pittsburgh in fighting mood but mistakes will kill them.

Philadelphia 28, Atlanta 14—Eagles just skinned past Falcons 9-7 in exhibition game but that was first game for both clubs. Timmy Brown, Pete Retzlaff and Ben Hawkins should catch enough of Norm Snead's passes for comfortable edge. Randy Johnson will test Eagles' defense.

Dallas 35, New York 20—Cowboys achieving for action after first week bye. Giants hurting in both lines and regrouping forces. Dallas anxious to show Cotton Bowl fans they are real pennant threats with Mel Renfro, Bob Hayes, Don Perkins, Don Meredith and that rugged defense.

St. Louis 30, Washington 14—Cards in top condition with big lift from rookie Johnny Roland. Charley Johnson should get fat on Redskins' walking wounded in the secondary. Sonny Jurgensen's bombs will be constant threat.

AFL
Houston 28, New York 24—This could be for the title despite early date. Oilers are red hot with old man George Blanda at the controls. However, Jets' defensive rush will dirty his uniform. Joe Namath might pull it out if Jets' running game wakes up. New York won exhibition game 16-10.

Buffalo 27, Miami 7—Bill's 0-2 and you don't repeat that way. They are looking for somebody to beat and the new Dolphins pop into War Memorial Stadium just at the right time. If Jack Kemp's arm still is sore, Daryle Lamonica can handle

Robinson Leads Orioles to Victory

By HAL ROCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Forgive Hank Bauer for his furrowed brow.

Sure, Baltimore is winning games again and edging closer to its first American League pennant, but Bauer's still frowning.

The Orioles reduced their magic number for clinching the flag to seven Thursday night with a 2-0, 4-3 sweep against California but the heroes were a pair of players who won't be able to help Bauer against the National League champions next month.

Rookie Tom Phoebus, making his first major league start, pitched the four-hit shutout in the first game, striking out eight. He was brought up from Rochester of the International League after Aug. 31 and is ineligible for the World Series.

Veteran Charley Lau, who has spent most of the season on the disabled list, delivered a pinch single that drove in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth in the nightcap. He was added to the active roster after Aug. 31 and also will watch the Series from the sidelines.

The double victory ended a four-game Oriole losing streak but the lame-duck heroes left Bauer less than ecstatic.

He wasn't the only one unhappy in the American League Thursday.

There was Sonny Siebert, who allowed only four hits and went all the way for Cleveland, but lost a 1-0 tangle in 11 innings to Kansas City.

The winner? Wes Stock... one of seven pitchers who shared the shutout for the Athletics. The Indians out-hit the A's 10-4, but Kansas City scored the only run.

There was Minnesota Manager Sam Mele, who must have been awe-struck watching Detroit turn a two-out passed-ball third strike into a rally that was climaxed by Jim Northrup's grand-slam homer. That shot led the Tigers to an 8-5 triumph over Minnesota.

New York Yankee Manager Ralph Houk couldn't have been too happy over the prospect of falling into last place after dropping the opener of a double-header to Washington 5-4. Rookie Stan Bahnsen rescued the Yankees from that indignity by beating the Senators 10-5 in the nightcap.

Carl Yastrzemski's 1,000th major league hit highlighted Boston's four-run second inning and helped the Red Sox to a 5-4 victory over Chicago. It was Boston's eighth straight triumph over the White Sox in Fenway Park and Eddie Stanky wasn't smiling over that.

In the National League, San Francisco battered New York 10-4, Chicago downed Atlanta 8-2, and Los Angeles topped Pittsburgh 5-3.

Consecutive homers by Brooks Robinson and Curt Blefary gave Phoebus his victory in the first game. The homers came in the sixth inning against loser Dean Chance.

Blefary also homered in the nightcap but California, trailing 3-0 with two out in the ninth, rallied to tie the score. Then Lau, batting for only the eighth time this year, singled home Sam Bowers with the winner in the bottom half.

Bert Campaneris drove in the only run off Siebert with a sacrifice fly in the 11th as the A's stretched their winning streak to seven games. It was the fifth straight loss for the Indians, who have not scored in 27 innings.

Earl Battey's passed ball on the third strike to Norm Cash opened the gates for the Tigers in the fifth inning against the Twins. Al Kaline and Willie Horton followed with walks before Northrup homered. Horton and Dick McAuliffe also homered for Detroit.

THE JOB
Boston 17, Denver 10—Home opener for Broncos, Pats' Jim Nance comes off a good game against San Diego. Gino Cappelletti may be the difference.

Kansas City 31 Oakland 21—Opening game in new Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum will give Raiders big boost after shutout defeat in Houston. Chiefs have been rolling with Len Dawson and Pete Beathard splitting the work and Bert Coan carrying the ball.

MORE CATHOLIC MISSIONARIES
The Bishops of the American Conference of Catholic Bishops have announced that they will send 150 missionaries to the Congo in 1967. The missionaries will be sent to the Congo to help in the development of the country and to provide religious instruction to the people.

CATHOLIC LEADS INDIANS

BALTIMORE, N.H. (AP)—The Catholic Church in Baltimore has announced that it will send 150 missionaries to the Congo in 1967. The missionaries will be sent to the Congo to help in the development of the country and to provide religious instruction to the people.

THE JOB

Boston 17, Denver 10—Home opener for Broncos, Pats' Jim Nance comes off a good game against San Diego. Gino Cappelletti may be the difference.

Kansas City 31 Oakland 21—Opening game in new Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum will give Raiders big boost after shutout defeat in Houston. Chiefs have been rolling with Len Dawson and Pete Beathard splitting the work and Bert Coan carrying the ball.

MORE CATHOLIC MISSIONARIES

The Bishops of the American Conference of Catholic Bishops have announced that they will send 150 missionaries to the Congo in 1967. The missionaries will be sent to the Congo to help in the development of the country and to provide religious instruction to the people.

Permits for Hunting at Millwood

Tulsa District Engineers signalled the approaching fall hunting season today with the announcement that permits for duck blinds on the Millwood Reservoir will be issued on a first come, first served basis. Applications will not be accepted by mail.

Permits will be issued at the Millwood Project office from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

After a permit is granted all blinds must be constructed within two weeks after opening of the waterfowl season or within two weeks after the permit is granted, whichever ever is later. If a blind is not constructed in the established deadline, the permit will be revoked and issued to another applicant.

Hunters will be required to comply with state and federal game laws. Hunting will not be permitted in public park or recreational areas, along public roads or near structures.

No hunting will be permitted from Beard's Bluff Recreation Area along the shoreline to the Project Office.

Hunters will be expected to exercise the rules of hunting safety. Each year duck hunters are killed or injured by careless handling of firearms or they drown due to a failure to observe water safety rules.

Don't become a Millwood statistic this year.

Texas' Bill Bradley Is Highly Touted

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Bill Bradley, the 19-year-old quarterback with the small hands and the growing reputation, makes his varsity debut for Texas against ninth-ranked Southern California Saturday when five other ranking teams see action on the season's first full-scale college football program.

USC is a slight underdog in its nationally televised (ABC-4:30 p.m., EDT) game at Austin, Tex.

The five others, though, are favored by at least two touchdowns.

Michigan State, runner-up to Alabama in The Associated Press' pre-season poll, is at home to North Carolina State. Nebraska, No. 3, hosts Texas Christian. Fourth-ranked UCLA is at home to Pittsburgh in a night game. Arkansas, No. 5, faces Oklahoma State under the lights at Little Rock while the U.S. troops in Viet Nam.

Purdue, rated eighth, meets Ohio University at home.

Alabama, picked to win the national championship for an unprecedented third straight time, is idle. So are Notre Dame, No. 6, Syracuse, No. 7, and Tennessee, No. 10. Syracuse was trounced 35-12 by Baylor last Saturday. The other three open their campaigns next week.

Bradley, the Southwest Conference's most touted football player in two decades, will be the first starting sophomore quarterback at Texas since Darrell Royal took over as coach in 1957.

Bradley earned that position on the strength of his performance during his freshman year when he ran for 417 yards, punted for a 43.5 yard average and scored five touchdowns.

Another game likely to have a grip on the football fans in Baton Rouge, La., is the one involving South Carolina, coached by Paul Dietzel, and Louisiana State. Dietzel, the former pilot at LSU and Army, will be making his debut as the South Carolina boss.

More than a dozen other inter-sectional games are on tap Saturday. They include Maryland at Penn State, Illinois at Southern Methodist, Kansas State at Army, Oregon State at Michigan, Texas A&M at Georgia Tech, Northwestern at Florida, Texas Tech at Kansas and Houston at Florida.

Lou Saban, former coach of Buffalo and Boston of the American Football League, is the new Maryland coach while Joe Paterno has taken over from the retired Lip Eagle at Penn State.

WARTIME ENGLAND

LONDON (AP)—German Playwright Rolf Hochhuth wants his latest play done in London first instead of in Germany "because of political objectivity."

Hochhuth previously started up an international bus with "The Deputy," which concerned the role of Pope Pius XII in World War II. The new drama, "The Soldier," concerns wartime soldiers in England.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Drugs Are Safely Used For Combating Depression

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—I have a low blood pressure (110 over 70) and am chronically depressed. My doctor prescribed Ritalin as an antidepressant. What treatment would you recommend?

A—For an adult of any age yours is an excellent blood pressure. It is lower than average but in no sense is it abnormally low.

There are several types of depression which may require different methods of treatment. Methylphenidate (Ritalin) is one of the safest of the antidepressant drugs. Since the only persons who should not take it are those with high blood pressure or epilepsy (I assume you do not have the latter) you should continue to follow your doctor's advice.

Q—Are there different kinds of Bantline? What are they for? Can women take them with no ill effects? Are they tranquilizers?

A — Methantheline (Bantline), methantheline with phenobarbital, propantheline (Pro-Banthine) and propantheline with thiopropazate are all given to relieve abdominal distress by reducing the peristaltic movements of the gastrointestinal tract. They are given to patients with peptic ulcer to decrease the output of acid by the stomach.

Side effects are rare but in some persons they may cause dilation of the pupils and dryness of the mouth. They have no adverse effect on women. They are not tranquilizers but when combined with phenobarbital the latter may cause drowsiness.

Q—My mother is 53 years old. The doctor says she has Addison's disease. What causes the deep bronze color of her skin? Is there any cure for Addison's disease?

A—This disease is characterized by easy fatigability, weakness, loss of appetite and loss of weight. It is caused by a chronic deficiency of the adrenals. The dark skin color is an acceleration of the normal pigment production, is a part of the disease. There is no cure for this formerly fatal disease but it can now be controlled by giving maintenance doses of adrenal cortical hormone.

Q—What effect does Orinase have on the red blood cell count? What is the count for all types of blood cells in a healthy person?

A—Tolbutamide (Orinase) usually has no effect on the blood cell counts but in a few persons it may cause dangerously low counts of all the cells. The normal red cell count is 4 to 5 million; white cells 5,000 to 10,000; and platelets 200,000 to 300,000.

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

DON'T MISS OUT IN THE JOB HUNT: Because of kooky clothes—Millions of you will be looking for jobs this fall... a new job, a first job... part-time or full time. One of the chief things that people who do hiring notice is how you look. Put your best foot forward... starting with the crown of your head. Hair—not too long... for either girls or men. And GIRLS, go easy on the makeup—spare your future boss that sirenlike heavy eyeshadow, fluttering false eyelashes, sick-white lipstick. Dress of skirts—should be businesslike... not too short (not too long) or too tight... and the same goes for sweaters. Don't come clanking in with pounds of jewelry... or flaunting textured stockings or tight. Much of the same goes for MEN—wear socks, reasonably conservative ones... avoid tight hipster pants... and, anyway, wear a jacket over them and wear a tie. Since you dress to impress others, dress to impress employers that you're businesslike... when you go on that job interview.

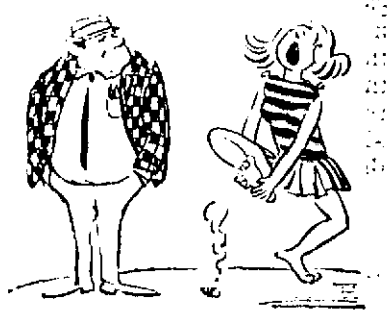

COLLEGE, YES — MARRIAGE, NO: Does going to college influence your getting married — and vice versa? A great deal — the figures show — for men, and even more for girls. Today, a quarter of all students graduating from college are married... but four out of five of them are men... because married coeds tend to drop their courses or only attend part time. And, though more high school grads than brides go on to college, marriage means the end of higher education for many of them. Among high school girls the most frequent age for marriage is 18... among college graduates it's 22. So — like it or not — chances are that going to college, will keep a girl an "old maid" for four more years.

PLAY IT SAFE: About personal safety—Too many unexpected and ugly things have been happening on the streets, not to be careful these darker fall and winter nights... especially—but not only—if you're a girl. First and foremost stick always: whether you're walking or driving in a car, stick to well-lit streets (statistics show light balks criminal attacks). When you park, keep your car locked... before you get in again, check that no one is hiding in the back seat. After getting in, lock the doors again and roll the windows down... stick to this—don't unroll or open them at traffic lights. Check, before driving at night, that your car is O.K.—that it won't stall, that your lights pick out things clearly, your horn works. When you use a bus, wait at a stop near a light and where other people are waiting. No matter where you are, don't go out of your way to attract attention, don't encourage strangers—either by the way you act, or dress.

WILL LYNDA'S BEAU HIT BIG-TIME TV? Class of '67—the Sept. 10, one-hour, variety show special, was beamed on the airwaves for two reasons—to showcase George Hamilton, Lynda Johnson's actor escort, and to present television's picture of what's happening in the college world today. If this new format, built around a collegiate musical, pulled a big audience, it foreshadows a new television trend—away from the expiring rock 'n' roll musicals to more sophisticated fare... and it'll win a regular spot for young adult viewers on the 1967 net.

BAREFOOT IN THE CITY: An end of the summer survey shows shoelessness continued to increase—bare feet walked right in the middle of towns around summer resorts and near beaches some young adults dispensed with shoes during supermarket shopping. But a new barefoot bomb dropped at the close of the summer when mid-teen girls showed up in the midtown streets and Grand Central railroad station—"barefoot"—in New York City. YOUTH BEAT verified this—groups of girls carrying their shoes... looking rebellious but not too comfortable on dirty, hot pavements. Maybe it's a plot of hosiery manufacturers to wear out girls' stockings faster.

South Vietnamese forces there, the delta, striking ashore as Some top U.S. military men think at least three U.S. divisions should be added to the three South Vietnamese divisions already there. Army troops also may be assigned to a special amphibious force which U.S. leaders reportedly have been discussing. Such a seaborne force would float off

Ground Force to Extend Operations

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. ground forces probably will extend their operations into South Viet Nam's delta region by next spring, sources indicated today. Some senior U.S. military officers said there is a good chance the United States will have its infantry in the delta within six months. Others speak of this happening as soon as after the first of the year.

The South Vietnamese army now has chief responsibility for fighting the Viet Cong in the delta, the country's rice bowl and one of its most heavily populated regions.

That army's strongest boosters among U.S. military leaders here claim little more than a stalemate for the South Vietnamese in the delta. Its critics say the Vietnamese are losing there.

So far, the United States has limited its operations in the delta to advising South Vietnamese troops, providing helicopter support for them, mounting air power to back up Vietnamese army units and sending out Navy river patrols.

The broadening of U.S. ground fighting into the delta awaits the arrival of at least one more division.

Although the Marines consider the swampy, water-laced delta their kind of terrain, sources indicated the Army may get the main job of helping out the

Life In Arkansas

By ALVIN SCHAY
Associated Press Writer

The City of Harrison has a different approach to catching up with those who don't pay overparking tickets on time. The delinquents find with their water bill a note stating how much they owe in parking fines. No, the city doesn't cut off the water if traffic tickets go unpaid.

Don Magness, who has the job of catching overtime parkers, has given 7,596 tickets since Harrison purchased a motor scooter five months ago. The fine at Harrison is 25 cents if paid within 24 hours.

Many Arkansas landlords would probably like to run into people like Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Higgins.

When the Higgins rented a two-bedroom home at Conway about 41 years ago, they said they would stay there "as long as we are in Conway."

They finally vacated the house last week to move to Little Rock. Higgins retired four years ago as a teacher at Arkansas State Teachers College.

The 11 years the Higgins spent at Conway is about the same length of time Esco Moser of Batesville spent cutting hair in nine Arkansas cities and in six other states.

Moser spent a total of 32 years in Batesville, but also worked in Anderson, Guion, Melbourne, Lake City, Cave City, Evening Shade, Midway and Cushman, as well as California, Oklahoma, Texas, Tennessee, Michigan and Missouri.

He says he's enjoying his retirement.

For a north Arkansas man, the price of helping his son the high school went up a little this year.

The son, who is married, had his family and belongings packed into a car and trailer, and all the farewells and good-byes were said. But he was back in an hour, with a report that the car wouldn't run.

The last of it was that the car wouldn't run. The son, who is married, had his family and belongings packed into a car and trailer, and all the farewells and good-byes were said. But he was back in an hour, with a report that the car wouldn't run.

Business spending on plant and equipment has climbed sharply during the four-year existence of the 7 per cent tax credit on new investment which President Johnson is now moving to set aside for 16 months as an anti-inflation measure. Outlay for the current year is estimated at almost twice the level of September 1962, when the credit was initiated to spur a then-lagging economy by encouraging business to pump in new funds.

Amazin' Mets Find a Winner

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Wes Westrum gave a mock shudder after commenting that the major leagues was one heckuva place to learn how to pitch.

"But," he added softly, "I guess you have to expect those things sometimes."

You do if you're manager of the New York Mets, a club on which stranger things have happened.

Westrum was being grilled about Dennis Ribant, the little righthander who stands to be the first Met starter ever to finish a season with more victories than losses.

"I'm just as surprised as anyone," Westrum said. "Frankly, I had a dozen other pitchers in mind before Ribant when we started spring training."

"He pitched pretty good in Florida and the next thing I know we're in the middle of the season and Ribant is threatening to be my best pitcher, with 6 or 7 wins and only a couple of losses."

"We'd all been working with him, of course, but nobody realized the message was sinking in."

Ribant tells it the same.

"I was too cocky for my own good," he said. "I kept thinking that since I wasn't exactly Juan Marichal I would have to win my games on guts."

"Last year and the year before when I was up here, I'd try to blast the ball by Mays and Aaron and all the big hitters. I'd blow it right down the pipe, waist high, and challenge 'em to hit it."

Ribant spent most of last season in Buffalo, sorely missed by all those big hitters.

"So when I was up the second time last year," he continued, "I finally began to use my brain. I shut out Pittsburgh for 11 innings in September by doing what everybody had been telling me all along — keep the ball low, pick the corners, pitch to weaknesses, change speeds, think."

"I was amazed. It worked. All those guys were right."

Born in Detroit, Ribant now lives in Ontario, Canada. In high school he was a better hockey prospect than baseball player, but he turned down an offer from the Detroit Red Wings and was signed by the Milwaukee Braves. The Mets got him for Frank Lary two years ago.

Now Ribant, at 24, is something of a museum piece around Shea Stadium. "My teammates are starting to look at me funny," he said. So are the hitters on the other National League clubs, who must need time to get used to a Met starter who is a winner.

Ribant rattles off his victories as he might the alphabet. "Yeah," he'll say, "Chicago four times, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Perry and Maloney — ah — those two were sweet."

The Mets have a winner. As Casey Stengel might have said, "Amazin'."

A STRIKEOUT PER INNING

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodger southpaw ace Sandy Koufax is still striking out National League batters. When he scored his 19th victory in 25 decisions he was leading both leagues in strikeouts with 240 in 233 innings.

The two-time World Series hero also was leading both leagues in earned runs with a 1.65 mark. In fact, two other Dodgers, relief pitchers Phil Regan and Ron Peranowski, also were allowing less than two earned runs per nine innings.

In the last three seasons, Lafayette College has won only four of 28 football games. Two ended in ties.

Pat Smith's Outdoor Notebook

The kid, gripping the shaft of the harpoon, catwalked on to the hooped guard at the end of the pulpit of the chartered boat Shirley L. out of Rock Harbor, Mass., and tensed as the thick back of the big bluefin tuna rolled clear of the green water of Provincetown Harbor at the seaward end of Capt. Cod.

The kid's knees bent and his right arm went up—but a second too late. The fish had completed its roll and its tail was whipping the surface.

The kid, Gerry Higgins, 17, of Orleans, Mass., glanced nervously over his shoulder at the flying bridge to where Capt. Richard Stevenson, owner of the Shirley L., was mad cussing the boat at half-power to keep close to the bluefin. The skipper waved briefly and grinned.

"Easy does it, kid," he called above the growl of the engines. "Next time he shows, let him have it." From the cockpit, Reginald Higgins, Gerry's father, watched tensely.

It was a crazy business but the last day of August and 30 first day of September had been crazy days in Provincetown Harbor. Veteran fishermen of the area had never seen anything like it. Scores of giant tuna, moving in schools, had come charging in from the Atlantic, hotly pursued by killer whales.

At the shallow water of the harbor, the whales, which need sea room and plenty of depth to survive, had turned sullen back and the tuna were comparatively safe. A few were caught by casters and a few more by trolling. But the harpooners scored best.

Now the kid, who had never thrown a harpoon in his young life (indeed, he had never even seen a tuna ironed), was in the pulpit with the javelin in his hand, waiting, and on the bridge his idol, Skipper Steve, was watching calmly and if the cockpit his old man was having a few words with the saints who are shipmates with all pure-hearted fishermen. "Watch it," Capt. Stevenson's voice came down to the boy. "he's coming up ... Easy, now, when his head shows an starts down—now!"

The great bulk of the tuna heaved free of the water one more and Gerry's arm rose and shot down and forward in single, smooth motion and the javelin flashed away true to the mark. The head of the harpoon buried itself deep in the fish, the vicious barbs bit and held and the shaft came away and the fish, shuddering, sounded, the harpoon line trailing from its nest on Shirley L.'s deck.

A yell of triumph tore from the kid's throat, a great, exultant laugh came from the bridge and in the cockpit, Reginald Higgins was having a hasty word of thanks with the saint before dashing topside to congratulate his son.

The rest is anticlimactic but important. The fish, take aboard after a three-hour running fight, weighed 995 pounds on the scales in Orleans, and then was hauled around the Cape fishing ports and out to Plum Island, the home of migh fishermen of past and present, to be exhibited to hundred who had never seen so large a tuna killed by the iron. To be sure, no records of harpooned fish are kept and doubtless bigger bluefins have been ironed but no one around the Cape could remember a greater prize.

The 995-pounder eclipsed by 18 pounds the 977-pound all time, all-tackle world's record fish taken off Nova Scotia by Cmdr. Duncan Hodgson on rod and reel in 1950, but rod and reel guys do not consider harpooning a sport so they will not be excited by Gerry's fish.

But Gerry will and his father will—for the rest of their lives.

Add New Experiences: Aground on Oyster Bar in Florida

Returning Wednesday from two and a half weeks in Florida your editor reported Thursday on a 90-mile cruise he and Tom Purvis of Hope made on the Suwannee River Aug. 29.

The next day, Aug. 30, we were on salt water at Sarasota. Small boats like ours, a 16-footer, do go out in the Gulf, but most of the small-boat cruising takes place on the Intracoastal Waterway, a protected route that practically encircles Florida's 2,000-mile coastline.

We launched at Sarasota, Purvis and I being joined by Dr. Clark H. Yeager, a brother-in-law who has visited in Hope in the past. Going further back Purvis and Dr. Yeager found a common bond. Purvis is a native Mississippian, who taught in the Jackson High School before coming to Hope, and Dr. Yeager recollected that his initial field assignment for the Rockefeller Foundation many years ago was in Mississippi near Tupelo, Purvis' home area.

We launched in Sarasota Bay and started south on the Intracoastal Waterway for Venice, 15 miles away. The so-called "canal" varies in width from several hundred yards to as much as two miles, and the channel is marked with numbered posts on either side, painted black on the west, red on the east. Causeways and draw-bridges span the waterway at intervals to allow mainlanders to drive to the outlying keys. We passed under several of these bridges and were about 10 miles south of Sarasota when our voyage was interrupted by trouble.

The federal government is in process of improving the Intracoastal Waterway, deepening the old 6-foot channel to 9 feet, which required relocating the channel markers and changing all the numbers.

Sometimes these markers are a mile or more apart, and on a hazy day (we had forgotten to take along our binoculars this particular day) we lost contact with the guide-posts; and while feeling around for the channel we felt the boat jar slightly.

We were aground, of course, even though we appeared to be in deep water. What we were aground on, as we quickly discovered on going overboard, was an oyster bar. The one-ton boat was sitting in a foot of water, its bottom clutched by the file-like shells of a million live oysters. The three of us couldn't budge the boat an inch.

A sand bar you can see, but an oyster bar is lobster-colored and invisible unless above water. We were in no danger, for we could have walked ashore along the bar to Casey Key. Ahead of us about 400 or 500 yards, however, was an industrial marina with big fishing and tug-boats.

My boat has a pipsqueak horn I have always despised, but its call must be effective. After a few minutes' signalling we were rewarded by action from the marina, and pretty soon a tug-boat came out and hauled us clear of the bar. We gratefully paid $5 and resumed our trip to Venice. Our experience is Florida legend. My information is that no one ever gets a boat off an oyster bar without help. The thought crossed my mind, however, that if the marina hadn't been conveniently close, and another private boat had come to our rescue neither of us would have had on board a stout towline. So the next day I added to our nautical stores a 50-foot half-inch nylon line, good for a 7,000-pound pull!

We went on to Venice, put up at the Venice Yacht Club on the strength of Dr. Yeager's Sarasota club membership, and then started our return trip. It was uneventful by sea standards, except that on entering Sarasota Bay, virtually in sight of our launching ramp, we were nailed down by a tropical squall that had been circling blindly for an hour. Dr. Yeager had previously advised me to put up the convertible top, but your hard-headed editor argued that we couldn't sight the guide-posts through the windshield. But after the soaking we got that day I put up the top the next morning.

When returning home I left the boat in Sarasota, hoping to make an air trip back there during the winter. The reason: At present the Intracoastal Waterway has a gap between Venice and

THE PRIMARY reason for the smile on the face of former Gov. Endicott Peabody, left, is the fact that he defeated Boston Mayor John F. Collins in a primary election for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Massachusetts. Peabody will face Attorney General Edward W. Brooke in November. Democratic Gov. Karl Rolvaag, center, upset Lieutenant Governor Sandy Keith as he captured the nomination for a second term in Minnesota while Rep. Joseph W. Aid Program Gets a Pat, Gentle Rap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee gave the foreign aid program a mild pat on the back and a gentle rap on the wrist today — and voted it more than $3 billion in new appropriations.

The money is $293.2 million less than President Johnson requested for the fiscal year ending next June 30 and some $408 million below the ceiling Congress approved recently in a separate bill.

It is ticketed for military assistance to an estimated 52 nations and economic aid to an estimated 72 countries, some of which receive both forms of help.

The total—$3,092,762,000—is about $1.1 billion less than Congress provided for foreign aid programs last year.

Most of the money is earmarked for various types of economic assistance, including $200 million for technical cooperation and development grants, $140.4 million for international organizations and programs, $690 million for supporting aid to help bolster the defense of less-developed nations, $420.3 million for development loans to Latin-American nations and $590 million for development loans to other countries.

The total approved for economic help is $201.2 million less than the President requested.

For direct military aid, the committee recommended $825 million, a reduction of $92 million from the amount requested. This program provides military equipment, military training and other military services. It does not include military help for South Viet Nam which was provided in the Defense Department appropriation bill.

In a report written by Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., the committee said "it is hardly arguable that our past aid in defense of the free world has paid dividends by helping to thwart and frustrate the world Communist drive."

"Not only has it foiled aggression; it has brought stability to a number of countries," the committee added. "But no one seriously thinks that foreign aid is a panacea for all the ills which it is directed. It is only one device, one tool."

But despite what it called "the dedicated efforts of many," the committee said the program over the years "has been beset with innumerable mistakes in administration, with too much waste, too many ill-advised or premature project undertakings."

Charlotte Bay (Punta Gorda, Fla.) where for 25 miles you have to go out into the Gulf, a hazardous jump for small boats. But by February or March the government expects to have the Venice-Charlotte Bay cut completed—so that small boats may go down the West Coast safely all the way from Clearwater to Fort Myers.

Fort Myers is on the Caloosahatchee River, giving small boats access to Lake Okeechobee and the interior to Florida, as well as a network of canals connecting with Miami and all the East Coast cities.

French Drain of Gold From U.S. May Bring Congressional Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee chairman, irked by French demands for U.S. military withdrawal, says perhaps the 60,501 American soldiers buried in France should be removed, too.

Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., added his angry comment Thursday to a subcommittee report recommending that France pay removal and replacement costs of U.S. facilities which are being withdrawn under order of French President Charles de Gaulle.

In other developments: The Belgium Foreign Ministry reported it will cost $43 million to transfer the North Atlantic Treaty Organization military headquarters from France to Belgium.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler announced that France has made an advance payment of $70.8 million on its post-World War II debt to the United States.

U.S. officials cautioned that if American troops are withdrawn from Europe in substantial numbers, no Western European country appears ready to take up the slack. This, they said, could give the Soviet Union an opportunity to take advantage of Western weakness.

Rivers declared that U.S. "generosity and good will are being rewarded by the ingratitude of President de Gaulle and the government of France."

He said 60,501 "American men lie in French cemeteries after giving their lives to save

Mills Urges Democrats to Forgive

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—There is no such thing as a Democrat who can't forgive and forget.

Those are the words of Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who was named permanent chairman of the Democratic state convention here Thursday.

He and a host of other speakers stressed unity, unity, unity. Gov. Orval Faubus said it was the newspapers who were trying to give the impression that the Democratic Party was badly split from a bitter primary election campaign which saw Jim Johnson emerge victorious.

Mills said "this business of saying there is a division in the Democratic Party is a figment of the imaginations of those who are doomed to lose."

He said the Republicans will find in November "a patient completely renewed, physically able and mentally alert to take them on and show them under."

David Pryor, the party's choice in the 4th congressional district race and keynote speaker, dealt with the question in the most direct terms offered by the speech makers.

Grenada's Schools Open After Order

GRENADA, Miss. (AP) — Public schools reopen today after a federal judge ordered town officials to court in the aftermath of attacks on Negro students by angry whites.

Classes were suspended Thursday while U.S. District Judge Claude Clayton heard newsmen and others tell of white persons, some with ax handles, beating Negro pupils.

Judge Clayton continues the hearing today at Oxford. The Justice Department asked for the hearing after whites turned on Negro students and newsmen when classes were desegregated Monday and Tuesday.

A detail of 200 state officers, mostly riot-trained highway patrolmen, remain on duty in Grenada, 45 miles south of Oxford.

At a rally Thursday night in the Bell Flower Church, Hosea Williams, a lieutenant in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., would come to Grenada next week, probably Monday or Tuesday.

In Thursday's hearing some Negro parents said their children would have been killed if they had left cars which had pulled up in front of Grenada schools Monday.

Williams told the rally Thursday night: "You're a coward if you don't send your kids out there."

After the rally, 262 Negroes marched through town. Some 100 helmeted highway patrolmen, armed with tear-gas grenades, cordoned off the main plaza. Whites, standing in small groups, watched in silence.

The tense atmosphere was broken only by the chanting of freedom songs by the marchers. "We're not asking for piece-meal freedom in Mississippi. We want all of it and we want it now," Williams told the marchers.

Among pupils testifying before Judge Clayton was Tommy Roberts.

In telling of seeing a friend stomped, Roberts said a truck loaded with white men pulled up as he and another boy left the school.

"One of the men said 'get that nigger,'" and hurled two soft-drink bottles, Roberts said.

Roberts said he was hit by one bottle and his companion by the other. He said he ran back in the school and the other boy ran home.

Time Running Out on Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A listless filibuster drones on today as the Senate waits for time to run out on the civil rights bill of 1966.

On Monday, the Senate will face its second vote on a move to halt debate and force action on the bill and its controversial open housing section.

No one expects the move to succeed.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield filed the new cloture petition Thursday. His first effort, on Wednesday, fell 10 votes short of the two-thirds vote it needed.

Mansfield and Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., conceded that the new venture probably will fail, too — although by a smaller margin.

"Arithmetic is arithmetic," said Hart.

The Senate agreed to vote at 2 p.m. EDT Monday on the new cloture petition. It seeks to end debate on Hart's motion to have the Senate take up the bill — which includes a ban on racial discrimination in housing affecting about 60 per cent of the apartments and new houses in the country. Individual homeowners generally are exempt.

Big Bombers Pound Cong Infested Zone

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers pounded the demilitarized zone today just a few miles north of a sweep by U.S. Marines against North Vietnamese army regulars.

In a pre-dawn raid, the bombers swept in from Guam to hammer at enemy troop concentrations and storage areas in the six-mile-wide buffer zone between North and South Viet Nam.

Three miles south of the zone, newly landed Marines pushed inland across coastal marshlands and paddies to track down elements of the reorganized 324B North Vietnamese Division.

The Marines landed by helicopter and landing craft Thursday and met no opposition. But in their first contact later in the day, a Leatherneck reconnaissance team surprised a company of North Vietnamese troops moving down a trail. The North Vietnamese were camouflaged with grass and bushes tied to their bodies.

A U.S. spokesman said the Marines and Communists clashed at close range in a brief but fierce fire fight which inflicted moderate casualties among the Marines. He said nine of the North Vietnamese

Construction Started on Ashdown Mill

Construction has begun on a new $46 million kraft pulp and paper mill in Ashdown, Arkansas, for Nekoosa-Edwards Paper Company.

Brown & Root, Inc. of Houston is engineer and contractor for the facility which will be completed by May 1968.

Capacity of the mill will be 400 tons per day of bleached wood pulp and 200 tons per day of fine paper. Related equipment, processing, finishing and waste treatment and power facilities are included in the engineering and construction contract.

Brown & Root's feasibility study for the plant revealed a sufficient pulpwood supply in the area for the present and future operations.

Nekoosa-Edwards has purchased approximately 1900 acres for the plant site. Some 3.6 million acres of commercial forests exist within a 50 miles radius of Ashdown.

Adequate water supply is available and approval has been obtained from Texas and Arkansas water pollution authorities for disposal into the Red River.

When completed, the mill will provide direct employment for about 435 persons.

Justice Jim Opens Arms to Democrats

By BILL SIMMONS

Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Jim Johnson today threw his arms open to Democrats — friend and foe alike — and told them, "You know I love you. You know I need you by my side, standing up for America."

The Democratic nominee for governor in a speech prepared for delivery to his party's state convention, followed Thursday's panorama of speakers in declaring that the party is not divided.

"I say we are gathered here in convention to show the world that the Democratic Party of Arkansas is united," Johnson said.

He said he appreciated noble gestures and forceful oratory that point out the need for party unity but added, "I have simply detected no evidence of disharmony."

The former state Supreme Court justice weighted his eight-page speech with heavy criticism of his Republican opponent, Winthrop Rockefeller, and the Arkansas Gazette.

Johnson said Rockefeller's only claim to public service is that "his millions attracted for him an honorary appointment from a Democratic governor."

Then Johnson made this charge: "The records will show that even in this position, he was unable to resist the temptation for further enrichment when he took the confidential information available to him and bought property for housing developments in areas where new industries were to be located."

Johnson said such advance information allowed Rockefeller to buy land at a low price before nearby communities knew for certain that an industry was coming.

Rockefeller, Johnson said, has made his goal forcing Democrats to wage costly campaigns and face constant Republican opposition as part of a "clever scheme to make it so expensive to run for office that one who does not have the approval of the appointed, together with his unlimited financial backing, can never afford to run for office in Arkansas."

"Instead of a two-party system, this clever manipulator really wants, not a two-party system, not a one-party system, but one-man rule in Arkansas."

"In other words, he wants to become King Winthrop I."

In his attack on Rockefeller, Johnson also called the GOP candidate "a prissy sissy," "a Santa Gertrudis steer," "the man from New York," and "the Madison Avenue cowboy."

Johnson said he lost almost 40 pounds in the primary campaign but he still has the strength to defeat Rockefeller in November and that he wants all Democrats working with him.

Johnson made no references to Gov. Orval Faubus, although Faubus was a frequent target of criticism in Johnson's primary campaigns.

But the nominee did promise changes in different aspects of Faubus' administration.

"You Highway Department will be cleaned up," Johnson said. "You Insurance Department will be cleaned up. Your inequitable retirement system will be corrected. Influence peddling will be prohibited. Intimidation of state employees will cease. Political manipulation of welfare funds will come to a screeching halt. Your tax dollars will not be the subject of greed of the favored few."

Fayetteville Plant Contract
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — General Electric Co. has a contract for more than $1 million for the manufacture of fuel pellets for the Southwest Experimental Fast Oxide Reactor project near here.

The contract went to the Nuclear Fuel Services Co., which is to deliver the plutonium-bearing pellets by next August.

Purpose of the project is to verify calculations which show that fast oxide reactors can be used for large central station electric power generation.
